

Regional Drought Resilience Planning

for North West Queensland

Are you a... primary producer, contractor, health service provider, private business, local council representative or someone living / working in North West Queensland?

Have you... been impacted by drought in the past or provided services to those who have been impacted?

Then it's time to... be part of planning for drought in the North West.

A series of workshops are happening in October and the Rural Economies Centre of Excellence (RECoE) and Southern Gulf NRM want to speak with the community about activities and initiatives that can help to mitigate the impact of future drought.

These workshops are part of the Regional Drought Resilience Planning (RDRP) program and will guide future investment in your region.

Have your say in the future of drought resilience planning.

Join us for a bite to eat as we workshop in:

Mount Isa on 24 October

Cloncurry on 25 October

Richmond on 26 October

Normanton on 31 October

The Regional Drought Resilience Plan for North West Queensland will support decisions, actions and investment to proactively manage drought risk.

The Queensland Department of Agriculture and Fisheries (DAF) has partnered with RECoE to facilitate the RDRP program. This initiative has been jointly funded through the Australian Government's Future Drought Fund and by the Queensland Government to support regions to prepare for future droughts, with a focus on the agricultural sector and allied industries.
